The Elden Ring is a fantasy action RPG created by the highly acclaimed RPG developer Cygames. The game is inspired by the traditional fantasy art of the gothic novel and features a layered story and various game elements. While exploring the vast environment, you can customize your character's appearance, equipment, and skills to adapt to the different situations you face. At the same time, you can become a character and share your thoughts with the entire world. With this system, we aim to create an unparalleled game experience that allows you to play your way. The game is now available for the Nintendo Switch. WHAT'S NEW • Get ready for the imminent release of the "Elden Ring: Tarnished Edition" on the Nintendo Switch. • The new system features various system improvements, as well as a full-fledged version of the new gameplay features, including a full new story. Egert Småland Egert Småland (22 September 1814 – 5 February 1874) was a Norwegian military officer, pioneer and engineer. Personal life Småland was born in Store Dalen, Telemark, Norway to Helga Kamper and Christian Jens Riis Småland. The family moved to Norway’s capital Christiania (today known as Oslo) in 1819. He married Morten Egede in 1839. The couple had six children. Military career He attended the Norwegian Military Academy in Trondheim where he graduated in 1835. During his time in Trondheim, Egert Småland worked at the acting Engineer-general, police-boats, and the protocol. In 1835, he started working at the 18-gun warship Caius. On 14 January 1843, there was a great fire in Christiania. Småland, who was then serving as a chief engineer and where serving as deputy engineer, was in charge of most of Christiania’s firefighting. For his skill in emergency situations, especially in Christiania, Småland was named a hovedmannsadjør in 1851, one of only three people to ever earn such a title. In 1858, he was made chief engineer. While he would still be recognized for his time with Caius in Trondheim, most of the credit went to the new battles
