Remove rom cache and put back the original rom in phone, restart and type `#000000#` Disable "Google" for security(or just clear it by going to settings > privacy > search > search history). Flash firmware via fastboot. Type `#1234` to turn on MTK driver. In Settings > Developer Options and enable USB Debugging. In root settings->adb->enable_adb_server=true In root settings->adb->enabled=true Run adb devices command to check if you can see your phone. Connect your phone to computer via USB debugging and then use ADB to update your firmware(work for me is to use adb devices, adb shell, adb sideload, adb push and adb shell.) via fastboot. Type `#1234` to turn on MTK driver. Wait until the update finish and reboot phone. That's it! Hope it helps! A: Download the Firmware from here. Download MHT to your PC Put the file MHT.bin into your SDK path Open ADB shell by: `adb -d shell` Run the following command to flash firmware using file mht: `fastboot flash mht MHT.bin` If that didn't work you may need to enable it for USB debugging: In Settings > Developer Options and enable USB Debugging. A: I have done the same a while back. Followed many methods and just what you said at the end worked for me. So for the ones that don't want to download and flash, the commands to use in terminal would be: #if your device's model is: 'xxxxx' #cd /sdcard/path/to/my/my_rooted_firmware #fastboot flash myfirmware.bin #fastboot reboot #fastboot oem unlock #fastboot reboot #if your device's model is: 'xxxxx' #cd /sdcard/path/to/my/my_rooted_firmware #fastboot flash myfirmware.bin #fastboot reboot #fastboot oem unlock #fastboot reboot #if your device's model is: 'xxxxx' #cd /sdcard/path/to/my/my_rooted_firmware #fastboot flash myfirmware.bin #fastboot reboot #fastboot oem unlock #fastboot reboot #if your device's model is: 'xxxxx' #cd /sdcard/path/to/my/my_rooted_
